

ANORAK

RICK DARGE

Rick Darge is an Emmy award winning filmmaker known for his playful, humorous, and witty approach with fantastical vignettes and amusing banter.

Born in South Plainfield, New Jersey, Rick discovered filmmaking at an early age - often employing family members around him to star in his short films and fake infomercials. He went on to study and graduate from USC Film School and spent the next few years working in post production, cutting everything from feature length documentaries, commercials, television specials. Rick would go on to win an Emmy award for his work on one of the first web series' programs ever to be nominated, Satacracy 88.

Having found success in cinematography, Rick made his final transition into writing and directing. He has since worked with brands such as Pepsi, Burger King, Hubspot, True Value Hardware, and celebrities including The Weeknd, Keke Palmer, and LCD Soundsystem.

CLICK HERE FOR RICK'S REEL