THOMAS ORMONDE

Thomas Ormonde's passion for filmmaking ignited during his childhood, sparked by the accessibility of his Dad's mini DV camera. Studying film and art in Bristol, he gravitated toward animation as a means to elevate the reliance on no show actors. Thomas then moved to London and began working at Fallon, where he directed adverts for the BBC and Cadbury.

His films, characterized by their vibrant aesthetics, comedic charm, and eccentric characters, captivate audiences with their kaleidoscopic allure. He has worked with clients such as Adidas, Samsung, and Amazon. His recent work with Audible has garnered Thomas a wealth of accolades, winning both Gold and Silver at the British Arrow awards
