

WALID LABRI

At just 28, Walid Labri is one of the most sought-after directors of his generation—an uncompromising creative force capturing the pulse of contemporary culture. A filmmaker with an instinct for storytelling that is both visually striking and emotionally charged, he crafts narratives that speak to a youth shaped by innovation, resilience, and a hunger for authenticity.

Born in London, Labri’s journey began early, immersing himself in film sets and sharpening his skills through music videos and commercial work. His style blends cinematic precision with cultural depth, marked by a powerful mix of raw realism and refined aesthetics.

His work spans fashion, music, and cinema, with a portfolio that includes global brands and today’s most influential artists. Each project carries a distinct perspective, combining humor, nostalgia, and social commentary into bold, visually impactful stories that resonate deeply—and shape cultural conversations.
